

ABOUT SCOTT BANDA

Scott is responsible for overseeing the development and execution of the Floorcloud's growth strategy, and focuses on building strategic partnerships, expanding the product roadmap, and supporting the company's customer community.

Prior to co-founding Floorcloud®, Scott was North American Director of Marketing & Business Development for Bostik, a global leader in the development of installation solutions for the construction industry. During his 16 years with Bostik, Scott led new product ideation, and commercialization activities, founded the consumer products group, and played an integral role in the company's strategic acquisitions.

Scott's goal with Floorcloud® is to render obsolete the old adage that "flooring is 3% of the budget and 30% of the problems," by better connecting installers and manufacturers to help improve outcomes.

Scott holds a B.S. in Marketing from Bentley University, an MBA from Northeastern University, a Certificate in Sustainable Design from the Boston Architectural College and is a former LEED Accredited Professional.